EDUCATION

- I built a solid intellectual foundation at the public school where I finished my matriculation. I then pursued my intermediate study at the same college. I was able to expand my knowledge and abilities in a comfortable setting because of this constancy. I concentrated on improving my theoretical and practical knowledge of a variety of subjects during my academic career. My resolve was strengthened by this event, which also prepared the way for my future web development profession.

WORK EXPERIENCE

GEXTON

WEB DEVELOPER

- During my internship at Gexton, I gained hands-on experience in web development, primarily focusing on HTML, CSS, and JavaScript. I contributed to building and maintaining responsive, user-friendly websites by writing clean, efficient code. My work involved collaborating with senior developers to implement various features, ensuring cross-browser compatibility and optimizing web performance. This opportunity helped me develop a strong foundation in front-end development while enhancing my problem-solving skills and ability to work in a collaborative team environment.
